business sectors. It is open to the entire community with three main areas. Each has several alternatives:

- The Cultural Center: Presents a variety of national and international art exhibits and performances. These include film, theater, music, dance, and classic and contemporary visual arts. It also offers extension courses and workshops in art, cinema and culture in general.
- The Center for Events and Services: The Center has an ample and diverse infrastructure that includes various rooms, halls, auditoriums, exhibit areas, etc.
- The Training and Continuing Education Center: see above.

In addition, it has support services for the production of events, design and production of graphic material.

IV. PUBLICATIONS

Ediciones Universidad Católica de Chile celebrates its 25th anniversary this year with a Catalog including more than 600 unpublished titles, many of them with several reprints, and written 99% by UC professors.

Its publications are presented in nine well defined series with a strong identity and a clear profile. These series are Lessons, Research, Faith & Doctrine, Art, Learning, Selected Readings, Biographies, Conferences and Dissemination. In 1993, University Texts and Workbooks were added, a valuable academic and editorial complement.

To expand its profile, a large number of copies are distributed all over Spanish speaking countries via different contracts. UC's Publishing House currently has a total of 250 clients in and outside Chile. Also, in 1998, Ediciones Universidad Católica de Chile signed an international publishing agreement with Alfaomega, Grupo Editor de México, which selected 44 UC titles that are now distributed in almost all Latin American countries, as well as Spain. Among them, the Learning Series from the Catalog of publications has had the best reception.

Participation in National Book Fairs and in some International Fairs, such as LIBER, Buenos Aires, Bogota and Guadalajara, combined with the commercial missions sent to these and other countries are an important means of distribution for the titles of this Publishing House.

Many recent publications have been extensively covered by the media, have been subsequently successfully marketed in various locations, and have achieved a wide readership due to their excellence. Among them are the PSU, nine books for students preparing each year for the University Selection Test.

Some of the 70 new titles and 40 reprints published in the last two years are from almost all the academic areas of study, for example:
